

Acknowledgement

First of all, I want to thank Professor Margaret Yang, my adviser, who wholeheartedly instructed me how to write my dissertation. She not only gave me inspiration but also shared valuable ideas with me. Without her guidance, I could never have completed my MA degree, a milestone in my academic study. More importantly, she has provided me the best example to follow with her high academic attainment of two Ph. D's, one from National Taiwan University, one from NYU in New York, and her unusually high spiritual concentration in doing anything meaningful.

And I want to thank my family members especially my parents. Their economic and spiritual supports are of vital importance in my thesis writing. They are always by my side and give me strength when I feel frustrated. My family is not very well off; therefore, their selfless supports have given me the incentive to work twice as hard for my future.

There are still some individuals I have to thank to. I want to thank my cousins Karen and Beta who offer the shelter and the daily needs in my last stage of writing the thesis, with their hospitality I can concentrate on my revisions. And I also want to thank my classmate Debbie who always reminds me about the details of the thesis' format. The last person I want to show my gratefulness to is Wendie, a special friend who is thoughtful, sensitive, and generous. She always gives me more assistance and comfort than she should.

Finally, I want to dedicate this thesis to all indomitable mothers in the world and especially my love to my dearest mother.

Cheng Chao-Yang

October 2010